The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending last Saturday was

5,825

copies, the largest circulation of any daily paper in Vermont outside of Burlington.

A great many baseball fans struck out for New York to-day, just as they will strike out for Philadelphia next week.

The Vermont W. C. T. U.'s continue their I. O. U.'s to Mrs. Ida H. Read by electing her again as honorary president. There's devotion, and not poorly placed, either.

Burlington, Rutland, Barre, Montpelier and St. Johnsbury seem to have borne the bulk of the task of inaugurating the new holiday this week, which was, of course, to be expected.

Every Vermont newspaper man who knew the late "Ed" Nutt of Montpelier knew also the camaraderie between him and his wife. Hence, the sad event of yesterday, in which the latter closed the book of her life, is not so inexplicable to them as it might seem to others.

The Waterbury Clarion, alias Record, thus sounds the trumpet:

"It will be all right and proper to talk over county politics very soon."

But it will be all right to roll over for another wink o' sleep; the election is a year off.

"A New Industry." "New Power Station." "Largest Stone Shed in Town Nearly Done," etc., are headlines in a single issue of the St. Johnsbury Cal-endonian. All of which pleases the remainder of the state, as indicative of certain progress in the saintly town to the northeast. May St. Johnsbury grow and grow and grow—except in wickedness.

Thursday is Vermont's first Columbus day as a legal holiday. Let's duly honor Christopher, for what would have happened if he hadn't discovered us.—St.
 Johnsbury Republican.

Well, Johnny Mead couldn't have been governor of Vermont; M. J. Hagood of Peru couldn't have worked himself into a frazzle over Vermont's going to the dogs; and Frank Green couldn't have had the pleasure of talking over the platform. Besides, there may be other things.

The Bradford Opinion looks back over thirty years and asserts with emphasis that Bradford is better to-day than it was thirty years ago; and it presents some statistics which, to the outsider, seem to bear out the assertion. The comparison that the contemporary makes is interesting, as it goes into the details of village life, even to the extent of naming the new houses built in the thirty years. In one particular, however, the contemporary is not satisfied, and that is with the condition of the roads in the village. That doubtless is true, but we are ready to assert that few villages have a more attractive main street than Bradford. If the road is somewhat below the same standard, it ought to be a comparatively easy matter to remedy the difficulty.

It has been asserted again and again that the State Agricultural college in Burlington educates its students above practical farming; yet we note that the winner of the annual potato-raising competition, conducted by the White River Railroad company, was a student at this institution and, furthermore, that the young man raised 425 bushels of potatoes on a single acre of land. If this young man did not give a practical demonstration of the value of college education in agriculture, then we do not know what is to be expected of young men nowadays.
 But we incline to the belief that it was a practical demonstration and will be generally credited as such. Incidentally, his success shows what can be done in Vermont along the lines of agriculture under competent care.

 date for re-election, even though he be confined to the bed by illness, even though he be stricken with what amounts to absolute paralysis. Senator Tillman of South Carolina has overlooked the fact that public office was not made for the gratification of the personal aggrandizement ambition of the individual, but rather that it was intended to be of service to the great body of people which the office represents. In trying to shut out a physically capable man from serving the people of South Carolina, Senator Tillman is decidedly unpatriotic and very selfish.—Barre Times.

Exactly. And now will the contemporary explain why Vermont should lose the vote of Senator Dillingham on important public questions simply because South Carolina has a senator that cannot attend to business and Senator Dil-lingham is "paired" with him? The Messenger is opposed to the system long prevailing in the United States Senate, not to Senator Dillingham, who has merely taken up a practice that he found and that is observed by his colleagues, too.

Let us have to logic of it.—St. Albans Messenger.

We refuse to attempt to give the logic of something which is not logical. The only way in which this "pairing" system might be reasonable would be in temporary "pairs" between men known to be on opposite sides of a certain question, when one of the men could not be present to vote. In that event, it would be logical to give the side thus handicapped an opportunity to tie the hands of the person on the other side, thus tending to preserve the balance of sentiment on a grave question. But to permanently "pair" any able-bodied senator, like Dillingham, with a man like Tillman, who is almost never in the Senate in these recent years, is wrong. If the "pair" system must hold in order to accommodate a man like Tillman, then the binding process should not be confined to one man on the opposite side of the house. Vermont protests rather vigorously against this locking of half its vote in the Senate. Let some other state assume the white man's burden in this instance; and then, again, let the duty be passed around more generally.
